

Arrest, charge, conviction of solicitors or employees

Updated 25 November 2019

Those we regulate have a duty to comply with our Principles [<https://rules.sra.org.uk/solicitors/standards-regulations/principles>].

If someone we regulate is arrested, charged or convicted the situation may have an impact on clients [<https://rules.sra.org.uk/consumers/using-solicitor/legal-jargon-explained#client>]. It may also affect the person's ability to practise. We may need to take action to protect clients.

If you discover that a person regulated by us has been arrested, charged or convicted of an offence, you should report them to us immediately:

- Visit report a solicitor [<https://rules.sra.org.uk/consumers/problems/report-solicitor/>], or
- call our contact centre [<https://rules.sra.org.uk/contact-us>].
